Public Relations

The goal of Public Relations (PR) is to find out, through the use of market research, how the public and individuals perceive your company or its products, and then to create and maintain a positive image and relationship between an organization and its public.

PeaceMark Community Health Network is already well established in the Wichita area, but the community is not necessarily aware of all the services PeaceMark Community Health Network provides, and PeaceMark Community Health Network is unaware of public opinion about its clinics and hospital.
